"Blown away"

"Safety isn't something that should sit locked away in a compliance manual for 'professionals' to handle—it belongs in our everyday lives, owned by every single one of us. That's why the first time I saw OurLens, I was completely blown away.
Its beauty lies in its sheer simplicity; it makes hazard identification effortless for regular people with zero safety training. I work with organizations across dozens of sectors, and OurLens seamlessly overlays onto any existing process or workflow. I highly recommend embedding OurLens into every team where safety is a priority, which, frankly, should be all of them."

"Accidental solution"

OurLens was almost an accidental solution to a problem we knew we had, but weren't quite sure how to tackle.
When holding public events, we rely heavily on volunteers of all ages and abilities. While we trained everyone during onboarding, success was always varying and people naturally get swept up in the moment of an event, meaning safety awareness slips. A friend introduced me to OurLens, and we haven't looked back.
The flexibility is fantastic and the feedback has been brilliant. It's had the unexpected benefit of making our volunteers generally far more aware of hazards in real time. We've seen the benefits so clearly that we are now actively encouraging other departments to trial OurLens across their own operations."
